

Le Fauve en Plein Air Painting Workshops

with Jack Randell on Sydney Harbour 27- 31 March 2012

Artist Jack will outline the nuances of the Fauve's colour palette and guide you in drawing and design techniques for painters. Participants will learn new brush techniques suitable for a free and open style and explore how imagination enriches observation. Learn to understand the perception of nature through consideration of its essential forms. ...The interrelationships between environment & art can nowhere be more clearly demonstrated than in the lives & dwelling places of bohemian artists' les fauves (wild beasts) as they were known who lived in Paris during first decade of the 20 century...

One and two day intensive workshops will be conducted 10am-3pm daily en plein air (in the open) You will explore the use of colour as Jack discusses how emotion may be rendered into your work. Jack will demonstrate painting techniques including card edge, scumbled brushing, ragging, sgraffito and complementary key-lining using a bold le Fauve palette from an impressive range of Derivan Matisse acrylic paints.

"I attended a landscape workshop run by Jack Randell earlier this year. I have not attempted landscape painting before and found Jack's class extremely informative. His teaching style, while relaxed, was easy to follow and some of the techniques I learnt in his class have been used in some of my latest works. I came away from the class with completed works that I was very happy with. No time was wasted and a great deal learnt in a short amount of time" Laurie Rouse
